Moving Forward Together: Designing the Process for Selecting a Site

1. Does the framework of objectives, ethical principles and requirements provide a sound foundation for designing the process for selecting a site?

- 1) Select a number of sites
- 2) Start your info programs
- 3) Pros & Cons. - people will work with you!

2. How can we ensure that the process for selecting a site is fair?

The main reason should be to select a secure location / NOT the total cost.
In SASKATCHEWAN are uranium mining locations so are near Timmins Ont.

3. From what models and experience should we draw in designing the process?

NORTHERN AREAS, if almost all PROVINCES have old mining towns. The basic INFRASTRUCTURE IS there!

4. Who should be involved in the process for selecting a site, and what should be their role?

Will you find a location where many different situations will be evaluated. such as - security of location, security of people in population, STAFF, TRANSPORTATION, people who reside in or near the location should be near a community where housing and education of family is possible

5. What information and tools do you think would facilitate your participation?

Please make use of detailed information
Most host communities should be involved in the decision if this town is considered (Pinawa People have good knowledge and could be interested - However the town is growing again and new residents may have different opinions -

6. What else needs to be considered?

The willingness of people to relocate!
to take the risk!

How many people will it take to do the job
once the location is selected!

ARNOLD CHRISTMANN

Please once you have selected a location start with locating a info office and give the population a chance to meet future management STAFF.

I have managed companies but not such as N W O M O will need, but I always was of the opinion that people deal with people not with companies
